

Be User Friendly

UKI.NET has a number of features to help make your site accessible to your visitors. We believe building a website that is easy to use is the basis of creating a successful site.

Text Only Version

Not everyone visiting your site will be viewing it on a standard PC monitor. The text only version enables visually impaired visitors to alter the text size via their own browser settings so that they can read the information.

Print Version

The print version link creates a printer friendly version of your web page. The menu and some design elements are removed to ensure that users only print the information they require.

Site Map

With this link activated visitors can view all the pages on your site at a glance. The site map page is automatically generated and updated each time you make a change to your pages.

Alt Tags

All of the images that you add to the 'Image Manager' can be given a description, this is called alt text. Alternative text should be used to describe the image. Don't just put 'this is a photo'. Describe the image 'A black cat eating fish' for example.

Alt text displays when you hover your mouse over the image. The description will also display if you are viewing the site without graphics. For more information about adding alt tags read the 'Image Manager' help sheet.
